

Jeff has served his career as an MFT with more than 37 years of experience. Stone found his niche working with first responders and their families, becoming a pioneer in the industry of supporting first responders in preventative mental health training. Jeff now provides insight, support, and professional expertise to First Responders Resiliency, Inc. by continuing to run a thriving private and virtual practice in New Hampshire for those in the industry.